Drawings

The drawings were received on 3/21/2006. These drawings are acceptable. The prior objections to the drawings are withdrawn.

Reasons for Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the prior art does not teach a spoke permanent magnet rotor assembly for a motor having a single body of permanent magnet material continuously surrounding the axis of rotation to define a circumferential portion with a first interface surface and continuously radially extending outwardly relative to the axis of rotation to form a plurality of outwardly extending portions. The rotor assembly including ferromagnetic material positioned adjacent the outwardly extending portions of permanent magnet material and including an outer surface and a second interface surface which is inward of the outer surface and engages the first interface surface, where the first and second interface surfaces are arranged to inhibit the outward radial movement of the ferromagnetic material.

The prior art does not teach a permanent magnet rotor assembly for a motor having a shaft supporting a permanent magnet rotor with a portion of permanent magnet material surrounding portion of the axis of rotation and including a portion that is not magnetized and a plurality of angularly spaced spoke portions that are magnetized, and ferromagnetic material positioned between the angularly spaced spoke portions of the permanent magnet material.

The prior art does not teach a spoke permanent magnet rotor assembly for a motor having a shaft supporting a spoke permanent magnet rotor with permanent magnet material having a portion continuously surrounding the axis of rotation to define a circumferential portion with a first interface surface and continuously radially extending outwardly relative to the axis of rotation to form a plurality of outwardly extending portions. The rotor assembly including ferromagnetic material positioned adjacent the outwardly extending portions of permanent magnet material and including an outer surface and a second interface surface which is inward of the outer surface and engages the first interface surface, where the first and second interface surfaces are arranged to inhibit the outward radial movement of the ferromagnetic material.

The prior art does not teach a permanent magnet rotor assembly having a single body of permanent magnet material with a circumferential portion that surrounds the axis of rotation and has a substantial portion that is not magnetized, the permanent magnet material forming a plurality of spoke portions extending radially outward from the circumferential portion with each of the spoke portions being tangentially magnetized, where a plurality of poles pieces are disposed between adjacent spoke portions and coupled to the magnetic material such that the magnetic material inhibits outward radial movement of the pole pieces, and with a core disposed within the circumferential portion.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
